

Contents

Preface	xi
1 An American colony in Göttingen	1
2 19th century American notions of scholarship	21
3 Presidents Eliot and Gilman	51
4 Harvard and Chicago Hire Osgood, Bôcher, and Moore	89
5 The American Mathematical Society and the Transactions	115
6 The Princeton preceptors	143
7 The verge of parity with European nations	173
Sources and Acknowledgements	199
A Curriculum for 1849–1850 from the Yale College catalog 1849–1850	201
B Graduate mathematics courses for 1905–1906 from the Harvard President’s Report for 1905–06	205
C Graduate mathematics courses for 1905–1906 from the University of Chicago Annual Register of 1904–1905	207
Bibliography	211
Index	223